

ABOUT US

The Warrior Woman Foundation (TWWF) has a particular focus on young women leaving the out-of-home-care system on their 18th birthday, the date at which all government-based support ceases in NSW. Young women leaving care are among the most vulnerable and disadvantaged group of Australians in the community today.

TWWF bridges the gap between leaving care and a successful transition to adulthood to ensure that vulnerable young women have the skills, knowledge and confidence to build lasting community connections and long-term economic security.

Young Warrior Woman Program

The Young Warrior Woman (TYWW) Program is derived from the Self Determination Theory and addresses three crucial, simultaneous needs for young women to take control of their lives: relatedness, autonomy and competence.

TYWW program does this through peer support, group mentoring and one-to-one mentoring from trained, professional women who volunteer their time.

TWWF provides Mentors with a two day training program to ensure that they understand the needs of vulnerable young women and can provide appropriate and effective support.

Mentees will mentor and support Mentees to Build financial independence, Identify safe, secure housing, Increase employability and self-efficacy, Identify and build healthy relationships, Increase community connections, Improve mental and physical health, Build resilience and more.
